According to the Lancet commission, 5 billion people do not have access to safe, affordable surgical and anesthesia care when needed. The urgent need for surgical care in the world’s poorest regions is still widely unrecognized today. Many of these people need plastic- reconstructive surgery. To improve medical care in a long lasting, durable way, new ways to deliver education and medical care should be found.

This symposium is organized by the department of plastic Surgery of the Amsterdam UMC, ICOPLAST and Interplast Holland, and gives an overview of current initiatives and developments how some of these barriers can be crossed.

For who? This symposium is for everybody that is interested in global health.

Accreditation: 4 CME points – Dutch Association of Plastic Surgeons (NVPC)

1 October 2021 prof dr Corstiaan Breugem will give his inaugural lecture as professor in plastic and reconstructive surgery at the University of Amsterdam. He has a special focus on pediatric plastic surgery.

His lecture will focus on “ Crossing borders to improve treatment in Plastic Surgery”. This is a symposium preceding this inaugural lecture.
